

The leader dog got very excited every time Dimitri started again, jumping in joy, barking and quickly running ahead. Maybe because I am pulling the sled and he gets to play! Image sent over Contact5 (click to enlarge)

courtesy Dimitri Kieffer, SOURCE

LINKS

- Previous story
- Dimitri Kieffer's Nexus Expeditions blogspot

View Larger Map

Dimitri Kieffer update: Mother Nature ends his trek in remote Russia

EMAIL PRINT SHARE

TEXT
Posted: May 20, 2010 09:48 pm EDT

SUBSCRIBER CONTENT PREVIEW
FOR FULL STORY: LOGIN OR SUBSCRIBE NOW - UP TO 3 MONTHS FREE

After 83 days and 707 km walking, swimming and sledge hauling through Russia (Chukotka and Kamchatka), Dimitri Kieffer decided to end the 2010 edition of his human powered circumnavigation. He was hoping to walk further with a backpack, but a lot of exposed snowless tundra and three rivers to cross make it impossible for a snowmobile to drop his sled and remaining gear/supplies/food/fuel on the "tundra trail", he explained. The rivers crossing points are indeed currently 1.8 meters (6 feet) deep, thanks to the large amount...

CLICK HERE TO CONTINUE READING

0 comments ★ 0

Leave a message...

Newest

No one has commented yet.

DISQUS

Comment feed

Subscribe via email

EMAIL PRINT SHARE

TEXT

EXPEDITION
TECH WEEK
2013

Jan 16-23