

"A few curious single foxes followed closely my sled and I when we were moving forward on late evenings."

courtesy Dimitri Kieffer (over Contact5), SOURCE

[The landscape was] forever changing as I moved Southwest over plains, mountain passes, beautiful valleys and intriguing forests with multiple types of tall pine trees...

courtesy Dimitri Kieffer (over Contact5), SOURCE

ExWeb interview with Dimitri Kieffer (part 4/4): Completing the Missing Link

EMAIL PRINT SHARE TEXT
Posted: Jul 05, 2011 06:40 pm EDT

SUBSCRIBER CONTENT PREVIEW

FOR FULL STORY: LOGIN OR SUBSCRIBE NOW - UP TO 3 MONTHS FREE

(Correne Coetzer) Getting to the start point of this spring section from Paren to Omsukchan in Far Eastern Russia was a mission on its own. Then Dimitri had to deal with time pressure factors, deep, quick-sand snow, and boots that damaged his feet; eventually rapidly disintegrated themselves, pushing him to ski the last few days with ice-biting open toes. Completing the last 595 km of the Missing Link had its rewards: hospitable people, amazing landscapes, curious foxes and bears, and relaxing hot springs. ExplorersWeb...

CLICK HERE TO CONTINUE READING

0 comments

Leave a message...

Newest

No one has commented yet.

DISQUS

"I had to deal with a very large amount of fresh deep snow, the deepest I have really ever seen."
courtesy Dimitri Kieffer (over Contact5), SOURCE

"Once while riding down a hill, sitting on top of my sled, I was projected/airborne off an unseen rivers edge."
courtesy Dimitri Kieffer (over Contact5), SOURCE

"It took me 30 days to get from Moscow to my starting point in Paren (Kamchatka Koryak Okrug)."
courtesy Dimitri Kieffer (sent over Contact5), SOURCE

Comment feed

Subscribe via email

EMAIL PRINT SHARE

TEXT

LINKS

- Previous - ExWeb interview with Dimitri Kieffer \(part 3/4\): generous people, magic moments, low points, and The Missing Link
- Dimitri Kieffer's Nexus Expeditions blogspot
- Contact 5

